

Trevor Potter

Trevor Potter is a member in Caplin & Drysdale's Washington, D.C. office. He is one of the country's best-known and most experienced campaign and election lawyers, and is a former Commissioner and Chairman of the Federal Election Commission.

Mr. Potter advises clients on compliance with federal, state, and local campaign finance laws, the use of the Internet for political activity, government ethics requirements, lobbying registration, and related government affairs issues. His clients include corporations and their PACs, trade associations, nonprofit organizations, think tanks, and media and internet companies.

He has worked with a number of political campaigns, including serving as General Counsel of the McCain 2000 campaign and Deputy General Counsel of the Bush 1988 campaign. He is General Counsel of the Campaign Legal Center and of the Reform Institute. He chaired the U.S. Delegation to the Trilateral (U.S., Canada, and Mexico) Commission on Electoral Systems in Mexico City in 1994, and has been an official observer in foreign elections.

Mr. Potter is a Non-Resident Senior Fellow at the Brookings Institution and Editor of the Brookings Campaign Finance web site. He has published several books and articles in the field, including: Federal Election Law and the Internet, Brookings Institution, 2000; Political Activity, Lobbying Laws and Gift Rules Guide, Glasser Legal Works, 1999; Buckley v. Valeo, Political Disclosure and the First Amendment, Akron Law Review, 1999; and Campaign Finance Sourcebook, Brookings Institution, 1997. He is a frequent guest speaker at a variety of professional meetings. Mr. Potter has testified before Congress on federal election proposals and campaign finance regulation. He has taught campaign finance law at the University of Virginia School of Law, where he was Merrill Lecturer, and Oxford University where he was a Visiting Member of the Senior Common Room of Lincoln College in 1995.

Mr. Potter is currently Co-Chair of the American Bar Association's Election Law Committee (Administrative Law Section) and a Member of the ABA Standing Committee on Election Law.
